About the Conference:

On May, 9th, 1950, Robert Schuman started his declaration setting the base of what was to become the European Union with the words: "World peace cannot be safeguarded without the making of creative efforts proportionate to the dangers which threaten it". 66 years later, his words seem more accurate than ever, concluding on the mission of the European Union, as the most integrative international organization. With the ongoing developments of the international landscape, the European Union is currently facing numerous challenges and opportunities that need to be addressed.

The second edition of the International Conference Europe`s Day-9 May aims at moving further the debates initiated in the previous inaugural edition, bringing up to date topics related to the evolution and current situation of the European Union. Based on an interdisciplinary approach, this international conference creates a forum for academic discussions related to European issues, giving participants the opportunity to disseminate the results of their research on the subject.

The second section of the Conference - Poster session & practice debates, also at its second edition, invites BA, MA and high school students to present their work, enabling them to share new perspectives regarding their points of interest in the field of European Studies.
